We do read all emails and try to answer them in a timely manner, but are not always able to do so. All technical and operational issues are forwarded to the Webmaster for handling.

Emails Claiming To Be from HealthCorps®

Occasionally scam artists use a method called "phishing" in which mass emailers send messages claiming to be from HealthCorps, Highway to Health, or Dr. Oz. These fraudulent emails may use our name, logo, or employee email addresses in an attempt to obtain valuable information from consumers and businesses. These con artists know that people trust HealthCorps, Highway to Health, and Dr. Oz, and may use these names or that of some other well-known individual or organization to trick people into believing that they are dealing with a legitimate request for personal information. These fraudulent emails often pretend to need information quickly to trick the recipient into taking action.

HealthCorps does not send out emails asking for detailed personal information. If You get that sort of email and it appears to be from HealthCorps, You should assume that it is fraudulent and avoid clicking any link within the email. We would appreciate hearing from You if this happens by forwarding such messages to info@healthcorps.org.
