Not just another positive thinking show
In his new NBC summer series, bestselling author and inspirational speaker Tony Robbins uses his extraordinary skills to help deserving individuals who have suffered terrible setbacks in "Breakthrough with Tony Robbins."
And while "Breakthrough with Tony Robbins" is a show that deals with everyday people, Robbins also serves as an adviser to Fortune 500 executives and sports professionals.

In his book, Awaken the Giant Within, Robbins recounts meetings with Nelson Mandela, Mikhail Gorbachev, Bill Clinton, Margaret Thatcher, and Princess Diana. In the books Personal Power and Get the Edge Robbins says that celebrities who appeared in his infomercials, did so without compensation. Among others, these include Fran Tarkenton, Quincy Jones, Pamela Anderson and others. Robbins has counseled sports professionals such as Greg Norman, Serena Williams, Mike Tyson, Chuck Liddell, Diego Sanchez and Andre Agassi and sports teams such as the Los Angeles Kings.

Robbins is a member of the Advisory Board of HealthCorps. The HealthCorps in-school program shows teens practical life skills through interactive seminars focused on the value and power of students' bodies and minds. HealthCorps expects teens to become educated consumers and health activists, and teens are encouraged to develop positive behavioral shifts that enhance self-esteem. With the help of Dr. Mehmet Oz, HealthCorps is also fighting obesity among the nations' youth.
